The Odd Fellows are considering the advisability of following the example of the Masons and taking a recess during the heated term. They have not hitherto been accustomed to do so, but held their lodge meetings right along. It is, however, found that the attendances are light and little but routing work can be transacted during July and August, so that pothing would be less to a few weeks' cessawould be less by a few weeks' cessa-tion, and the brethren would come together afterwards with new life and renewed activity. A. O. U. W.

Little else was talked of in the circles of the different A. O. U. W. lodges than their magnificent float that appeared on each parade during the carnival. Certainly no fleat in the whole parade impressed the public as this one did, and the committee who arranged and constructed it deserves and has the thanks of the A. O. U. W. of Salt Lake city. A better choice in selecting a lady to take the part of the widow could not have been made than Mrs. Randolph, whose beautiful, sad face was spoken of all along the line.

The other brothers taking part also deserve great credit and the whole thing proved a great success.

The object lesson taught by this float should be the means of increasing the A. O. U. W. lodges to a great extent.

Bad Accident at Salina-The Fourth at Provo.

Bad Accident at Salina—The Fourth at Provo.

SALINA, Utah, July 5.—A terrible accident occurred here yesterday morning during our Fourth of July celebration, and the result is that the little 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crane has had to have her leg amputated just below the knee.

The accident was caused by firing anvils with a wagon burr between them. The burr being cast iron, of course could not stand the pressure, and flew in all directions. Luckilly but one piece went toward the bowery, where the people were assembled. That fatal piece struck little Bertha Crane's legitearing out about three inches of the shin bone, and left the leg hanging by the calf. Dr. C. E. West was soon summoned and pronounced it a case of amputation. Not wishing to perform the operation alone, he telegraphed Dr. Cassady of Ephraim, and the two performed the operation yesterday afternoon. It is hard to tell just how the child is at this hour (9:30 a.m.), as the reaction has not set in yet.

It filled the town with gloom yesterday and all amusement was suspended out of respect for the unfortunate child and her parents.

There is no blame for anyone except Orson Kelly, the young man who was assisting with the firing. During the earlier part of the morning the burrhad not been used. Wiser heads, it seems, had the matter in hand. Kelly wanted to put the burr on earlier, but others objected. After a while, however, he was left practically alone to do the firing, and quietly placed the burr between the anvils. The object was to produce a louder report. It did so, and with the result as stated.

so, and with the result as stated.

I forgot to mention in the above that after the piece of iron had torn the child's leg, it struck a bench, gianced and hit two other little girls, one on the calf of the leg, the other on the ankle. These were only badly bruised, however, and not seriously.

It is hoped that this will prove a warning to all people from this time on to be more cautious and see to it that if they must burn powder on a holiday that it be in the hands and under the management of those who will handle it with care. handle it with care.

THE MAN WHO SPITS.

There May Be Less of It Done in Indiana Than Heretofore.

Indiana Than Heretofore.

If the state board of health of Indiana carries out its idea, there is going to be less spitting done in the state than there is at present. The board is the investmate enemy of the man who spits, and proposes to pursue him with all the weapons that law will permit it to use. It has issued a letter to all railroad officials in Indiana asking them to have ejected from their trains every man who spits—that is, if he persistently after being warned

In its circular the board explains that "sputtum" is an excrement, full of the germs of la grippe, nasal catarrh and a whole train of minor ills. It also adds the information that "spitting is a nasty and unnecessary habit" and that "women do not." It explains that the state board of health will pass a rule against spitting, which will have all the force of law if the raliroads will only post it up and do their best to enforce it. With a stroke of persistence the board adds:

"When the rule is first published in each county, and when posted in public places, this board will, of course, be loudly abused as foolish, impracticable and idiotic. Attention then being gained, we will publish in every county reasons for the action."

WELL DONE.

The Fourth of July celebration is over. It was a great success and shows what can be done for Ogden by united, persistent effort. The task of conducting such celebrations and of making them successful is usually thankiess, but in this case exceptions should be made. To Director General Islaud is due in a great measure the merit and promptness which characterized the whole affair. Others did much and were willing to do more, but he organized the energies and put in action the enthusiasm which created the greatest Fourth of July celebration and, in fact, the greatest celebration of any kind that Ogden has ever held. Much credit is also due to W. T. Beardsiey, secretary and all round worker for the committee. Mrs. Jennie Nelson and Architect S. T. Whittaker were also untiring in their efforts. Furthermore, the undaunted and vigorous zeal of William Glasmann and the Standard is responsible for a good measure of the success, as is also the equally patriotic, if somewhat more conservative zeal, of other men and other papers. H. W. Gwilliam did splendid service in keeping the roads clear and in superintending the moving of various vehicles for the parade.
